Jewelry

I've enjoyed making beaded necklaces and earrings for more than 3 decades. My love for art started when I was in elementary school: A print from a linoleum cut that I made in sixth grade was part of an American Red Cross exhibit that toured the United States. I've been doing art for fun ever since. I also applied my "artist's eye" in my professional life when I was the editor in chief of an award-winning online science news website and monthly print magazine.

I like working with beads in all kinds of shapes and colors to create wearable art that's funky and fun. I especially like working with natural stones and glass beads.
