David Cohen
Photography

Why photograph wild things? Wilderness, air, novelty, light, color, learning, connection, perspective, contemplation, and humility; so much I revel in seeing for a first time, or in new ways. Photographing nature draws on techniques that any artist recognizes. It reminds me about unending adaptability, and the diversity of designs it brings. I am grateful to focus on the astonishing, high-flying, and quick. Here, gone, but for a moment, in focus.
